RÉSUMÉ OF THE ILLUSTRATED BOOKS AND CARICATURES FROM THE LIBRARY OF J. BARTON TOWNSEND, ESQ.

The Illustrated Books, Caricatures and Etchings by the Great English Book Illustrators and Caricaturists of the Nineteenth Century gathered by Mr. Townsend, and herein catalogued, comprise one of the most extensive and important collections of its kind ever offered at public sale in America. Many of the volumes are in full morocco or calf bindings by RIVIÈRE, TOUT, ZAEHNSDORF, SANGORSKI & SUTCLIFFE, LARKINS, and ROOT. A large number are in the Original Bindings; while a few are in Original Parts or Wrappers, AS ISSUED. Each volume contains the bookplate of the owner.

The Works of the THREE CRUIKSHANKS,—ISAAC, GEORGE AND ROBERT, comprise the greater part of this collection. They include Notable First Editions, Original Drawings, Aquatint Engravings in Color, and Colored Caricatures of all three artists. Many of these items are of great rarity; a number of them being of unusual interest, owing to the Autograph Inscriptions of the celebrated George, which appears on several of the plates etched by himself or his brother Robert. Among the books illustrated by these artists, are several of the RARER FIRST EDITIONS of the Works of Charles Dickens, William Harrison Ainsworth, Pierce Egan, William Combe, and Robert Westmacott; while in the field of Caricatures the collection is especially rich in examples of their work. These satirical and humorous sketches illustrate various incidents during the Napoleonic Wars, the Political and Social Life of England during the reign of George the Fourth, the liaison of Maria Foote and her friends, the troubles of Queen Caroline and her Royal Consort; also Sporting, Dramatic and Domestic Events; Rare Broadside and Song-Heads. Isaac Cruikshank and his son Robert are also, each represented by an Original Drawing; while by the celebrated George there are six drawings of unusual interest.

Besides the three Cruikshanks noted above, there are a few examples of the work of PERCY CRUIKSHANK (son of Robert), and of GEORGE CRUIKSHANK, JR. (son of Percy). The latter at first signed his plates,—“George Cruikshank, Jr.,” but in order to do away with the confusion created by this, he changed the same at the request of the great George, assumed his mother’s family name, and signed himself,—“George Calvert Cruikshank.”

Of Equal Importance with the Cruikshank Collection is that section containing examples of the work of the celebrated caricaturist,—THOMAS ROWLANDSON, whose compositions as represented herein comprise the most extensive and important series of books and caricatures by his hand, ever offered at public sale in America. This section comprises 195 different items, or groups of subjects, commencing with the first book illustrated by him, and including a large proportion of the more noteworthy and finer examples of his work; while his original watercolor work and sketches are represented by four different subjects and a volume of collected sketches.

THE NAPOLEONIC CARICATURES IN COLOR comprise over 100 different subjects illustrative of the Wars of Napoleon, and satirizing the great Emperor and the French people, from the year 1799 to the downfall of Napoleon in 1814.

The great Caricaturist of the latter Eighteenth and early Nineteenth Century,—JAMES GILLRAY, is represented by several collections of his satirical and humorous prints illustrative of the time of George the Third. In this art he had no rival; the exquisite tact with which he seized upon points, both in politics and manners, most open to ridicule, is only equalled by the consummate skill and wit with which he satirized them. Most of his work was etched at once upon the original copper without a previous drawing, his only guides being sketches of the distinguished characters made on small pieces of card which he always carried with him.

Among other ILLUSTRATORS OF NOTE, will be found examples of the work of Henry Alken, H. Bunbury, John Leech, William Heath, H. K. Browne—"Phiz," Robert Seymour, and G. Woodward, including an Original Drawing by Alken, and one by Woodward.

To the end, that interest might be added to the catalogue, where possible, references have been cited as to the best Bibliographical Works on the subject, and in describing the Caricatures the names have been given of the more important political and social personages.

20. BON TON MAGAZINE. The New Bon Ton Magazine; or, Telescope of the Times. COMPLETE SET, from the commencement, May, 1818 to its termination, April, 1821. 6 vols. 8vo, half calf, gilt.

London: Published by J. Johnston, 1818-1821

One of the scarcest periodicals of its time, and a most unusual set, CONTAINING THE FULL NUMBER OF COLORED CARICATURES (32), many of which are portraits of celebrities of the period. Very few known sets are actually complete with the full quota of 32 plates. The plate "THE BOXING BARONESS," generally missing, is present in the above set, in a fine example.

George Cruikshank is believed to have executed some of the unsigned plates, as he illustrated for the same publisher the rare "Town Talk" and "The Scourge," earlier periodicals of like class. A few of the plates are signed "Marks," an artist who executed some of the plates for "Real Life in London."

The editor of the "New Bon Ton Magazine" was the notorious Captain John Mitford, author of "Johnny Newcome in the Navy" and of several libellous publications that brought him into the clutches of the law. Nearly all the articles are written under assumed names, and include information of a "racy" nature connected with "Life in London" at the period. As a change from attacking "Wicked Earls" the editor has included a few articles on America, one referring to "A New Jerusalem in America," a colonization scheme of Mordecai Noah; & another article assumes that all American banks are founded on fraud and robbery.

An interesting feature is a "continuation" of Byron's "Don Juan," which runs through the two final volumes, and the first publication of an attempt to conclude it.

London: Printed for the Proprietors, and sold by M. Jones, 1814-1815

FIRST AND ONLY EDITION OF THIS CURIOUS WORK. Cohn, No. 28; Douglas, No. 15.

A complete set of this work (published in parts) is extremely difficult to secure, for the reason, that as many parts as possible were destroyed as they came out on account of the scandalous attacks they contain on many notables of the day.

The above copy has been bound by a former owner, from the original parts, the plates being inserted in their proper places according to the text. The plate missing in this copy is an unimportant one, being an uncolored portrait of a lady.

Mounted and matted, and bound in full blue levant morocco, lettered up back, sides with fillet border enclosing title in gilt, gilt edges, inside border, BY HYMAN ZUNCKER.

[London:] Published by William Hone [1818]

RARE ORIGINAL ISSUE OF THE NOTE, without the envelope. Douglas, No. 1842; Reid, No. 965.

Between the inscription and the line of publication is an ornament of fetters. Vignette, representing Britannia devouring her naked children, in a frame, which is composed of wretches hanging, and surmounted by a death's head. "Bank Restriction," is inscribed over a gibbet in the form of the blade of the guillotine, with eleven men and women hanging in a row to its handle.

About 1817 or 1818, the one-pound notes of the Bank of England were put in circulation. They were frequently forged, and the penalty for "passing" one was Death. On witnessing the hanging of several men and women, for passing these notes, Cruikshank went home, and in ten minutes designed the above "Note," the drawing of which, being exhibited in one of the Print Shops, attracted a large crowd which had to be dispersed by the police. Soon after, the Bank Directors held a meeting upon the subject, and decided to have no more one-pound notes issued. Eventually, Sir Robert Peel had passed in Parliament, a bill by which there was to be no more minor offences punishable by death, and so by this little drawing, Cruikshank claims to have saved many lives.

The 3 pieces, neatly mounted, the first in sunken mat, and bound in one vol. oblong 4to, green levant morocco, lettered in gilt on back and front cover, with panel of fillets in gilt, on sides.

London, 1810

A HIGHLY IMPORTANT CRUIKSHANK ITEM, the drawing is an ORIGINAL WATER-COLOR, 5½ by 8 inches, not signed, and depicts Mr. Mathews in the character of the coachman, similar to that used on the "Song-Head." The view is one of a room, opening into the street, apparently a distillery; the coachman has entered, and is holding a glass of liquor in his right hand, before him stands a portly dame, with bottle in hand; in the background, the distillery. EXCEEDING SCARCE AND UNIQUE, UNPUBLISHED.

The engraved "Song-head," is a FIRST STATE, IN COLORS, of,—BANG-UP-RANDOM, OR TANDEM. Written by J. Pocock, Esq., composed by Mr. C. Smith; and sung . . . by Mr. Mathews. Unsigned. With publisher's line,—Published 4th April, 1810, by Laurie & Whittle, No. 53, Fleet Street, London. Beneath are three columns of verse. This view is one of a broad country road, with a carriage drawn by three horses in tandem fashion and standing near a turn-pike. Mathews, in the character of a coachman is in the foreground. This plate gives an excellent idea of the costume and slang of fast men at the beginning of the 19th century. The above copy has two small tears at upper corners.

Accompanying the above is an uncolored copy of the plate. See, Douglas, No. 1818; Reid, No. 4496, for plate.

A most interesting sketch, showing several elfish demons and other figures floating through the heavens.

The signature to this drawing is one which was very distasteful to the elder George Cruikshank, the artist changing the same in later sketches at the request of the great George.

The following excerpt relative to the artist is taken from a letter written by the elder George Cruikshank, to Captain Reid, the Bibliographer, and which is now in the Cruikshank Collection at Princeton University,—

"I may just add that my brother 'I. R. C.' left a son, whose name is 'Percy,'—who is a draughtsman and wood engraver,—& who has a son, whose name is George, & who is also an artist. And as the two Georges creates some confusion, he intends I believe in future, to add his mother's family name, & sign himself "George Calvert Cruikshank."

The signature of the two illustrations in this work, would give the impression that they are by the son of the celebrated George Cruikshank; but, from an ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH LETTER BY GEORGE CRUIKSHANK, inserted in this copy, we find that they are by the son of his nephew Percy. The letter is signed in full "George Cruikshank," is dated "December 27, 1872," written to the Editor of "The Queen," and reads in part,—

"As it is stated in the Advertisements of the present number of 'London Society' that one of the illustrations to that Magazine is by George 'Cruikshank' I beg that you will allow me to inform the public through the medium of your paper, that the illustration mentioned is not by me, but by the son of my nephew, 'Percy Cruikshank' "

Parts I to IX [all published?] Illustrated with 82 colored etchings of exceedingly humorous character, on 79 plates. Oblong 4to, IN THE NINE ORIGINAL PARTS, WITH ALL WRAPPERS. Several parts rebacked, others with original leather backs. Enclosed in red morocco and cloth case, with hinged cover, lettered on front and back. Old initials on one cover.

London: John Miller and Rodwell & Martin, and William Blackwood, Edinburgh circa 1800-1806

FROM THE CHARLES COOPER TOWNSEND COLLECTION.

ORIGINAL EDITION, AS ISSUED. OF GREAT RARITY, ONE OF ONLY A FEW COPIES EXTANT IN PARTS AS ABOVE. PERHAPS THE MOST PERFECT COPY TO APPEAR FOR PUBLIC SALE IN AMERICA. The Prospectus on reverse of back wrapper reads in part,—"This work will contain all the best designs of this celebrated caricaturist, and will be published in monthly parts, each part to contain Nine Coloured plates." On the reverse of the back wrapper of Part IX, the statement is made that—"Part X. will be published on the First of January." It is doubtful whether many plates were issued after the above mentioned nine parts, although two copies have appeared in the London auction mart with ninety plates, which would seem to indicate that another number (Part X) must have been issued.

A work of great interest, containing some of the best caricatures of this celebrated artist, based upon the exploits of the Royal Family of Great Britain, the nobility, the Ministry and all sorts and conditions of men, including many fine caricatures of George III. and Napoleon, among them being,—The King of Brobdingnag and Gulliver (both plates); Tiddy-Doll the Great French Gingerbread Baker; Buonaparte Leaving Egypt; The Valley of the Shadow of Death, The Spanish Bullfight (and other Napoleonic plates); Connoisseurs examining a Collection of George Morlands, and many others, all of which are freely ridiculed by this daring censor.

This issue is much more valuable to the student of the social and political history of England of the period, than the atlas folio edition, as the letter-press explaining the plates accompanies the item here catalogued.

733. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLORS. A Phantasmagoria:—Scene—Conjuring-up an Armed Skeleton. "Js. Gillray invt. & fect." Pubd Jany 5th 1803, by J. Gillray, 27 St. James's Street. Size, 13 by 9¾ inches. Matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 272.

An excellent satire on the Peace proposals. Lord Addington, Wilberforce, Hawkesbury and Fox, dressed as witches, are boiling down the British lion, and their incantations raise from the mystic pot, the skeleton of Britannia. The French cock is sitting on the head of the British lion.

734. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. Political Candour;—i. e.—Coalition—"Resolution" of June 14th 1805. "Js. Gillray invt. & fect." Published June 21st 1805, by H. Humphrey 27 St. James's

In this plate, Pitt appears for the last time, in the series of caricatures by Gillray.

735. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. The Wounded Lion. Unsigned. Pubd. July 16th 1805, by H. Humphrey, 27 St. James's Street. Size, $9\frac{1}{4}$ by 14 inches. Matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 303.

Etched by James Gillray. Wright says that, "the conception of this plate is remarkably happy. The subject is the Impeachment of Lord Melville for making use of the Public Money for his own private accommodation, while he held the office of Treasurer of the Navy."

Lord Melville in the shape of a lion is lying on the ground, wounded by the discharge from a piece of ordnance fired by Lord St. Vincent, concealed behind a tree; Grey represented as a serpent, Fox in the character of his four-footed name-sake, Kinnaird as a wolf-dog, Lord Sidmouth depicted as an ass, his brother-in-law Bragge and his brother Addington, also represented as asses; Britannia is sitting under a tree.

736. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. La Diable-Boiteux,—or—The Devil upon Two Sticks, conveying John Bull to the Land of Promise. "Js. Gillray invt & fect." Published Feby 8th 1806 by H. Humphrey—27 St. James's Street London. Size, 13 by $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 307.

Fox, as the Diable Boiteux, is soaring through the air; his head is surrounded by the Prince of Wales's feathers, he is carrying Lord Sidmouth under his left wing and Lord Grenville under his right wing. He is calling to John Bull, who is holding to his cloak, "Come along, Johnny, take fast hold of my cloak."

Fox's coalition with Lord Grenville led to the Broad-Bottom Administration, which was completed February 3, 1806.

737. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. Making-Decent;—i. e.—Broad-bottomites getting into the Grand Costume. "Js. Gillray invt & fect." Pubd Feby 20th 1806—by H. Humphrey—No 27 St. James's Street—Size, $9\frac{1}{2}$ by $13\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 310.

Gillray represents the new Ministers (Whigs) as having been so long out of office, that they were unprepared for appearance at Court. The parties caricatured are,—Fox, who is shaving before a glass; Grey, cleaning his teeth; Lord Sidmouth, whose countenance is partially obscured by a snuff-box; Lord Moria, nearly dressed in his regimentals; others are,—Lord Grenville, Lord Erskine, Lord Henry Petty, and the Duke of Bedford.

Wright says that "the conception of this print is remarkably clever . . . but the idea is carried out with so much playfulness and good humor that the parties caricatured must have themselves joined heartily in the laugh."

Fourth Session, Thursday Afternoon, February 6th

738. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. More Pigs than Treats.—or—the new Litter of hungry Grunters, sucking John-Bulls-Old-Sow to death. "Js. Gillray invt. & fect." Pubd March 5th 1806, by H. Humphrey 27 St. James's Street—London. Size, $9\frac{1}{4}$ by $13\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 311.

A satire on the numerous new mouths which, by the accession of the Whigs to power, were to be added to those which already pulled so greedily at John Bull's purse. John appears in the background, in great alarm at the eagerness of his numerous brood.

739. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. A Tub for the Whale! representing an Empty Barrel tossed out to amuse the great Leviathan—John Bull, in order to divert him from instantly laying violent hands upon ye new Coalition Packet. "Js. Gillray invt. & fect." Pubd March 14th 1806 by H. Humphrey 27 St. James's Street. Size, 9 by $13\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Matted.

FINE IMPRESSION OF THE ORIGINAL COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 312.

A satire on the Broad-Bottoms, whose ship is wafted forward by the favor of the Prince of Wales, while they are obliged to throw out an empty cask, supposed to represent the promises of the Whigs, in order to amuse the great leviathan of public opinion. The broom at the mast-head indicates that the boat is to be disposed of.

740. GILLRAY (JAMES). CARICATURE IN COLOR. The Bear and his Leader.—"Js. Gillray fect." Pubd May 19th 1806, by H. Humphrey 27 St. James's Street. Size, $9\frac{1}{2}$ by $13\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Neatly matted.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. Wright and Evans, No. 317.

Fox is represented as a bear, muzzled and chained, led by his master, Lord Grenville, the latter has cudgel marked, "Cudgel for disobedient Bears." He calls out, "Don't be afraid of my Bear . . . I have tamed and muzzled him." Lord Sidmouth enacts the part of a blind old fiddler: Lord Petty, as a monkey, holds the bear's tail.

"The insinuation intended to be conveyed by Gillray in this print is that Fox having owed his introduction to office to Lord Grenville was thereby reduced to subordination to that Nobleman."—WRIGHT AND EVANS.

808. LEECH (JOHN) ILLUSTRATIONS. An original Envelope, in perfect state, the front of which has the original design, engraved by John Thompson, from the design of W. Mulready, R.A. 1842. Also, the exceedingly clever Parody on the Mulready Envelope, designed by John Leech, signed in the lower left corner, with Leech's "mark," in the lower centre of the caricature,—the bottle. The plate is humorously imprinted, "The design has (most respectfully of course) been submitted to Government by an aspiring artist, Mul-led-at-ready." (1850). Both items preserved in a cloth folder, lettered on the side.

The skit on the Mulready Envelope by John Leech was one of the most important factors that brought Leech before the public as a humorous draughtsman.

"Mr. Frith tells of Mulready's indignation at Leech's drawing—not at the caricature itself, but at the leech in the bottle, by which the Academician took it for granted that the draughtsman meant to designate him by innuendo as a "blood-sucker" and of Leech's surprise and pain at being so suspected, and how the two men became fast friends ever after."—SPIELMANN, "The History of Punch."

ONE OF THE RAREST AND MOST INTERESTING OF CRUIKSHANK'S CARICATURES, AS WELL AS ONE OF HIS EARLIEST ATTEMPTS ON A LARGE SCALE, HAVING BEEN EXECUTED BY HIM WHEN HE WAS BUT SIXTEEN YEARS OLD. The signature on the plate is the only instance of his calling himself "George Cruikshank, Junr.," which, of course, since there was no George Cruikshank, Sr., is not really correct. In later years, when the son of the great artist's nephew (whose name was George), signed his work, "George Cruikshank, Jr.," the originator of such plates as the above very indignantly refuted his work, and insisted that his method of signature be changed.

This remarkable caricature contains several figures, forming a curious procession of a retreating army, led by a coach in which the face of Joseph Bonaparte is seen at the window.

London, 1790-1792

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF THE PLATES. ONE OF THE MOST CHARMING AND VERSATILE OF ALL OF ROWLANDSON'S PRODUCTIONS, AND AMONG THE RAREST IN ITS COMPLETE FORM. Of the sixteen plates, only four were known to Grego, and these are mentioned in his Bibliography under "August 6, 1790, January 20, 1791, and January 31, 1791." Although Grego was familiar with but these four plates, the majority of the subjects were known to him, and throughout the early part of his Bibliography, the sketches that illustrate this work are largely those that are there reproduced.

The subjects are all delicately colored, and include scenes of Sport, Pastimes, Rural Occupations, Angling, Shooting, Skating, Coaching, Riding, Boxing, Dancing, Fencing, etc. The whole work illustrating in 170 different subjects, the growth and development of Rowlandson's style from mere sketchy experiments to pleasing pictures and social caricatures.

Unlike the copy in the Grollier Club Exhibition of 1916, the plates in this copy are unnumbered, the dates however coincide with the ones there given, being as follows,—(Nos. 1 to 4) March 8, 1789, (No. 5) June 18, 1790, (No. 6) June 20, 1790, (No. 7) June 27, 1790, (No. 8) June 20, 1790, (No. 9) Jan. 20, 1791, (No. 10) August 6, 1790, (No. 11) Jan. 31, 1791, (No. 12) August 6, 1790, (Nos. 13 to 16) June 1, 1792.

The plates in the above copy all show the old fold down centre, indicating that at one time they were bound as folded plates.

the plates framed and sold separately as examples of Rowlandson's fine work, and for their military value.

There is no list of plates, which bear technical military titles in panels on the borders. Most of them are signed by Rowlandson, in the body of the plate, and all have the publisher's name below, with the date "Septr. 1, 1798," with the exception of the title, which is dated as above, the eighth and ninth plates which have no imprint, and the seventeenth, from which the date is omitted. The title bears the words "Aquatinta by I. Hill."

The plates are all brilliant impressions in colors, and show the military exercises and movements of cavalry. The single figure in the foreground, illustrating sword exercises, is relieved and animated by the introduction in the background of the various skirmishes, assaults and battle-scenes, so that the plates lose all sense of formality.

Rowlandson and Pugin, the Introduction says,—“The architectural part of the subjects that are contained in this work, will be delineated with the utmost precision and care, by Mr. Pugin, whose uncommon accuracy and delicate taste have been displayed in his former productions. With respect to the figures, they are from the pencil of Mr. Rowlandson, with whose professional talents the public are already so well acquainted. The Book is a perfect treasure-house of scenes, described with pen and brush, from the London of a century ago.

The work of Rowlandson is different from most of his illustrations in other works, lacking the coarseness and grotesque quality that is generally characteristic of his work.

THE EXCEEDINGLY RARE ORIGINAL EDITION WITH THESE ILLUSTRATIONS. None of the plates are signed, and some of the dates vary from those given by Grego, being as follows,—

(Plate I.) CAPTURE OF THE PETTICOAT. Pubd Feby 12th 1812.

(Plate II.) BREAKFAST ROOM AT AN INN. Pubd Feby 10th 1812.

(Plate III.) COLLEGE GREEN, BEFORE THE UNION. Pubd 7 Feby 1812.

(Plate IV.) COLLEGE GREEN AFTER THE UNION. Pub 12 Feby 1812.

The argument upon which the story of this poem is set forth appears in the Preface of the work, as follows,—

"Dublin Castle."

"The Adventures of the Under Petticoat at the Castle Drawing Room."

"All the fashionable world has been amused with the singular disaster that befel a lady on Thursday night last, at the Viceregal Palace, by the loss of her Under-Petticoat, which from the pressure of the crowd, unfortunately slipped down through the capacious encumbrance of her hoop, and was soon trampled on the floor . . . One of the young pages first made the discovery. The trophy was soon displayed in order to find out the fair owner, which however still remains a secret."

The garment being claimed by several parties, "the Duke, with his usual good humour . . . decided the contest by saying . . . that he would solicit the Prince Regent, in the true spirit of chivalry, to establish and become Sovereign of the Order of the Petticoat of Ireland."

1047. ROWLANDSON (THOMAS). ORIGINAL WATERCOLOR DRAWINGS, SIGNED; ALSO FIRST STATE OF EACH PLATE, as follows,—

(1) "BATCHELOR'S FARE, Bread Cheese and Kisses." ORIGINAL WATERCOLOR. Signed, in the autograph of the artist,—
"Sketched at Buttershire. The Lady of the Lake. Rowlandson."

Size, $10\frac{3}{4}$ by $8\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Pasted to mount.

Size, $10\frac{3}{4}$ by $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches. Hinged to mount.

(4) FIRST PRINTED STATE, IN COLORS, of the above, retouched. Hinged to mount.

The four plates neatly bound in one vol. small folio, full crimson levant morocco, gilt back and sides, lettered on back and on front cover, BY ROOT.

UNIQUE ITEM. The first of the above drawings was executed by Rowlandson in the early part of his career and was published, with slight additions in 1813. The picture hanging on the wall of the room which Rowlandson pictures suggests the title of the plate. The inscription on this drawing, as quoted above is cut into, but is still discernible. Mounted opposite this drawing is the FIRST PUBLISHED STATE OF THE SAME, 1813, which is reproduced in Grego, Vol. II., page 253.

The second drawing (Item No. 3 of the above) is very similar in character, but not as well executed as the first. The centre figures are the same as those in the first drawing, but the outer details are somewhat changed. It would appear from the date on this drawing that the same is an earlier conception of the first drawing, and that, seeing the success and popularity of the plate BATCHELOR'S FARE, Rowlandson published his earlier work, privately, in 1815, under the title of HUG-MUG-GIN.

A copy of this plate accompanies the drawing; it is EXTREMELY SCARCE, being unknown to Grego.

1048. ROWLANDSON (THOMAS). A Collection of 48 ORIGINAL DRAWINGS IN WATERCOLOR, SEPIA, AND PEN AND INK, varying in size from 6 by $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches to $10\frac{3}{4}$ by $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches. ORIGINAL IMPRESSION, COLORED. VERY RARE.

In 1794, the volunteer and militia movements in England were pushed forward with enthusiasm, it being generally believed that the French might attempt a descent on the shores. The training of these new troops offered abundant material for the sallies of the satirists. In the present plate, Rowlandson burlesques the rustic cavalry of farmers and helpers, mounted on cart horses and armed with blunderbusses, flails, pitchforks, etc., who are horrifying their officer by executing an impromptu charge upon a peaceful farmyard, knocking down old ladies and scattering the poultry, etc.

FIRST STATE OF THIS RARE AQUATINT.

"This large plate, which is designed with due appreciation of grim humor and tipsy jocularly, introduces the traditional relaxations of the funeral furnishers, whose jollifications are supposed to offer the most ghastly contrast to their sober professional duties . . . The members of the fraternity are applying themselves with hearty goodwill to the fluids, far on the road to becoming 'glorious,' while some of the party have already reached their congenial stage of 'half seas over.' . . . Groups of gentlemen are seated at tables . . . The results of too indiscriminate indulgence are noticeable in the dangerous situation of those coaches which are attempting to 'homeward wend their melancholy way,' and are being overturned in their process by their tipsy drivers."—GREGO, in Rowlandson the Caricaturist.

ORIGINAL IMPRESSION. Reproduce in Grego. Vol. II. page 66.

"The complex nature of the famous broadbottom Administration, known as 'All the Talents,' is set forth in an allegorical representation, which is supposed to include the several qualifications of the vaunted illuminés. It may be remembered that this Ministry, which came into power under Liberal and popular auspices, retired on the rejection of their favourite measure Catholic Emancipation, which they were pledged to introduce. The King, and his friends, the remnant of the Pittites, made a desperate stand against this measure, and the consequence of its defeat was the immediate withdrawal of 'All the talents,' from office. As embodied by Rowlandson's pencil, the combination of heterogeneous elements produced a curious monster: the wig of a learned judge is worn on the head of a spectacled ape, with an episcopal mitre and a Catholic crozier; a lawyer's bands, a laced coat, and ragged breeches; wearing one shoe, and a French jackboot; and dancing upon a funeral pyre of papers, the results of the Administration, its endless negotiations with France, and its sinecures and patronages, which are blazing away. The creature's right foot is discharging a musket, to represent the 'Army' which is producing certain mischief in the rear, and bringing two heavy folios, 'Magna Charta' and the 'Coronation Oath' upon the head of the dangerous animal. . . . The smoke from the pipe of this lusus Naturae, is obscuring the portrait of William Pitt. The end of 'All the Talents' who sacrificed their influence from conscientious motives, and whose upright principles were beyond suspicion was a great source of triumph to their opponents, who signalled their retirement with a volley of satirical effusions."—GREGO in Rowlandson the Caricaturist.

LARGE AND FINE COPY OF THIS RARE AND CURIOUS WORK.
Although the plates are unsigned, they are considered by experts to be by C. Williams who did a number of books of this character at this period, and who illustrated another of Alfred Thornton's Books, "The Adventures of a Post Captain."
This entertaining work is a curious specimen of book-making. It was published in parts, and as far as the middle of Volume I. was founded upon a very free paraphrase of Byron's Poem, of which but five cantos had then appeared. About this time, "Life in London" leaped into popularity. Its success was so phenomenal that it was sufficient for the Author of "Don Juan," and straightway, "Don Juan" was pressed into rivalry with "Tom and Jerry."

1120. WOODWARD COLORED PLATES. The Musical Mania for the Year 1802 . . . dedicated to Mrs. Billington. With 6 caricatures in color (hand-colored at a later date and inscriptions cut into) by G. M. Woodward, also vignette woodcut on title-page. London, 1802; [ALSO] The Scum Uppermost . . . accompanied with an Admonitory Nod to a Blind Horse. With 3 engraved plates, unsigned. London, 1802; [ALSO] An Heroic Epistle to Mr. Winsor, the patentee of the Hydro-Carbonic Gas Lights and Founder of the National Light and Heat Company. By T. Sayers. London, 1808. Both items matted, the colored plate inlaid on drawing paper, the whole bound in a small folio, blue morocco, gilt panels on sides, broad dentelle borders.

FINE SPECIMEN OF A WOODWARD ORIGINAL DRAWING. The drawing in addition to being signed by the artist is dated, "Jany. 1800" (in pencil). This date, which is thought to be in the autograph of the artist, indicates that the drawing was executed nine years before the print, which is dated Jany. 27th, 1809.

Fifth Session, Thursday Evening, February 6th

1122. WOODWARD PLATES IN COLOR. Woodward (G. M.). Eccentric Excursions; or, Literary and Pictorial Sketches of Countenance, Character and Country, in different parts of England and Wales. Interspersed with Curious Anecdotes. With 100 plates IN COLOR, all engraved by Isaac Cruikshank, after G. M. Woodward. 4to, full crimson levant morocco, gilt, gilt top, BY ROOT. London: Allen and Co., 1796

FIRST EDITION. Large and fine copy, almost uncut. A number of the plates are dated 1797. The plates are rich in impression, many broadly satirize the life and times of the English and Welsh inhabitants of the time, both in town and country. They all were engraved by Isaac Cruikshank, the father of George.

Woodward, an associate of Rowlandson and Isaac Cruikshank, was a popular and prolific designer of caricatures much in the manner of Bunbury, but with a fecundity of humor not possessed by that artist. Some of Woodward's contemporaries looked upon him as almost another Hogarth, which, however, he never could have become for several reasons, among them being his lack of knowledge of drawing and the interference of low companions with their concomitants of whiskey, &c.

London: S. W. Fores, 1801

Complete set of this amusing series, the coloring good.
